Our Beautiful NATIVE PLANTS

MAY 1924
U.S. Department of Agriculture

All keen gardeners are very interested in Australian wild flowers and shrubs, but usually nurserymen avoid cultivating them, as in most cases they are hard to handle and propagate. However, of late years they have been successfully marketed and a big number of the best can now be purchased at prices ranging from 1/6 to 2/6 per plant. The demand for them has been great and the result quite satisfactory.

Our Christmas Bush makes a delightful shrub and is well worth its place in any garden. Botanically called CERATOPETALUM GUMNIFERUM, this plant is a beautiful tidy growing evergreen and presents a magnificent spectacle when in flower about Xmas time, with its rich red coloured blooms literally smothered all over the bush. A row of these plants makes a delightful hedge.

Another beautiful evergreen that makes a unique and pretty hedge of a smaller nature is the West Australian Native, CHORIZEMA CORDATA, which bears great quantities of pretty red pea-like flowers. Of great decorative value, this plant also makes charming shrubs.
